Gothenburg (Swedish: Göteborg) is the second largest city in Sweden. Situated on the west coast of Sweden. The City of Gothenburg was founded in 1621. It lies by the sea at the mouth of Gotha River (Göta Älv) and is the largest seaport in the Nordic countries. Gothenburg is home to many students, as the city includes both the University of Gothenburg and Chalmers University of Technology. The sea, trade and industrial history of the city is evident in the cultural life of Gothenburg.

Steve Parkes, University of Dundee, Scotland
Marin Suess, European Space Agency
Sandi Habinc, Aeroflex Gaisler, Sweden
